Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Thursday 08 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy with a little rain today. Heavier rain overnight.

Today:
A cloudy but largely dry day, though some patchy rain or drizzle is likely, especially in the mid to late afternoon. Windy, with a chance of gales in the north of the region. Noticeably less cold than recently. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Early evening will see a band of cloud and rain, heavy at times, move down from the north. Rain should clear by dawn, with clear skies in the north. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Friday:
Sunny in the morning, with cloud building through the afternoon, though likely clearing during the evening. Remaining largely dry throughout. Chillier than Thursday. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
The weekend is looking colder again but largely dry with sunny spells and just a few showers. Cloudier and breezier on Monday with outbreaks of rain or showers possible.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.